LOVE: IN AN EXOTIC LOCATION OR JUST DOWN THE HALL?

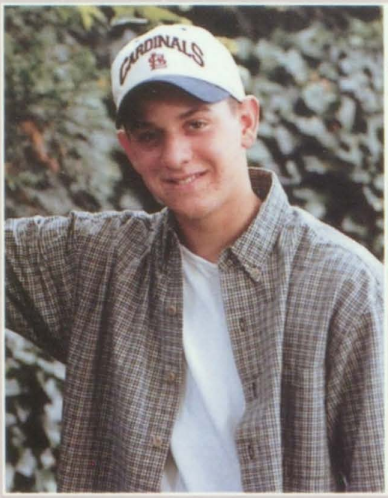

Every little girl's dream: kissing the boy she loves in some exotic location while the sun sets dramatically in the background. In high school, students search for love - from unlikely corners of the school to the safe fallback of an affair with a close friend. For four years, students experiment with love and relationships. And do they find that perfect someone to kiss as the sun sets? Maybe.

Some teenagers are just looking for a good time. They don't want to be tied down; after all, this is only high school and college years (and the future beyond that) has yet to come. "With the exception of a few relationships," said junior Lauren Williams, "people are just doing the dating thing and trying to have fun."

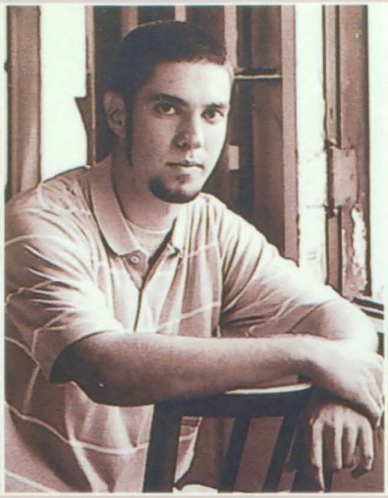

The "dating thing," however, has led quite a few students into serious relationships. Senior Jon Brough realized that he had been in a relationship of some sort or another for almost as long as he had attended West. The "dating thing" became so serious for some teens that they even discussed the possibility of marrying that high school sweetheart.

The middle road - and the past most frequently travelled - lies in the hallways. A majority of students are content to just kiss their current hunny in the "privacy" of a nook or cranny in the West campus. Public displays of affection are a source of debate among students, teachers, parents, and Hy News.

Whether these relationships will last forever or the next few days remains unknown. But until then, little girls and boys will continue to imagine that perfect boy they will (hopefully) meet - in high school or the future beyond. • Danielle Borsch

Planning Futures:
What to Bring, What to Leave at Home

Why would someone spend seven or eight dollars on a Magic Eight Ball that just sits on the dresser? Occasionally, the owner asks the all powerfull ball questions like, "Will Mike ask me to the dance?" In return, the ball gives an automated response - something like "outlook good" or "all signs point to yes." People do, however, want to know their future so badly that they will spend fortunes on Magic Eight Balls or the Psychic Hotline. But students plan their futures every day in the little decisions they make without the help of Cleo.

"[In twenty years, I will] hopefully not be living in the suberbs, hopefully not working in a cubical, hopefully not working from eight to four, hopefully not being someone I'm not, and hopefully not hating my life," said senior Brian Wild.

Many students share similar plans for the future. They typically want a steady job that they enjoy doing and that, of course, brings in the cash. To be or not to be - married - that is the question. "I don't want to be married, yet," said sophomore Lindsay Eghigian. She's just looking for "a serious relationship."

Ambitions of flocking to exciting places like Chicago and Florida soar through the minds of some students, while others, like junior Jill Wolfmierer, prefer to stick close to home. "I like my small town surrounded by corn," Wolfmierer remarked. Junior Lindsay Segmeyer will seek refuge in vacationing in Europe or China, any place she's "never been before."

So, what should go on the future "packing list?" Bring along the experiences, feelings, and goals from high school days, but leave the Magic Eight Ball at home.• Elena Rodriquez

Each year, the seniors gather together and plan the trip - the trip that will probably be their first and last trip together as THE SENIORS. Some years, however, are different. Seniors started planning in the fall for a standard excursion to Cancún. Seniors Todd Davis and Hillary Bennett organized preparations but soon found that a majority of the class had decided to travel abroad instead.

"Most of my friends decided to go on the school trip to Europe instead of Cancún," commented senior Sarah Jones. Although many others will have trouble paying for the trip abroad, Jones plans on saving her money for her New York trip with Model U.N. Notable, the costs of flying and staying in Europe will add up to considerably more than the fare to nearby Mexico.

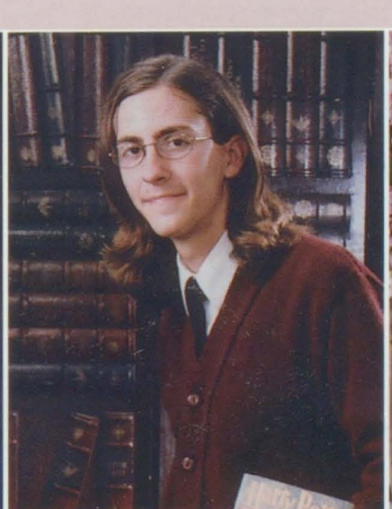

West sponsors more than one foreign travel option. Every other year, Mr. and Mrs. Chmeleck take a group of French students to France or Canada. The current group contains a mixture of seniors, juniors, and sophomores, with juniors holding the majority. They will spend twelve exciting days in the country that they have studied for as much as four years. "I can't wait to get to try out my French accent on the French people," said senior Rick Parrent, a fourth year French student.

Whether in a country speaking just one language or several countries speaking all different languages, students (especially the seniors) will have amazing cultural opportunities. So, anchors away! ... or planes ...

Students roam the globe to learn and to give

Many people take vacations out of the country, but some Belleville West students have traveled to some interesting places for unique reasons.

Brianna Kassebaum ('03) went to Paraguay in South America over the summer. For two weeks, with thirty other people, she did mission work for a local church. The group worked on making the foundation stronger, building a sidewalk by the church and putting in a forty-foot drainage pipe for the church.

Kassebaum said that one of her favorite parts of the trip were all of the kids of the area. "Just a smile or a high five could show a level of connection, even though we didn't speak the same language," she commented.

In Paraguay people use some of the same products Americans use, such as Coca-Cola and Sprite. Many things, however, a clearly different. One of these differences was found in an eight-year old boy who lived near the church. Every day he had to go to work to make money for his family.

Kassebaum plans to do more mission work next summer in Guatemala. "I'd go back in a heartbeat," she said. "I love doing mission work. It's so fulfilling."

A plethora of people ponder what it is actually like to live in another country. Amanda Parsons-Twesten ('03) and Philip Cornett ('03) were able to experience that firsthand this past summer. Both participated in a foreign exchange program where they stayed with a family in Germany for four weeks and a German student stayed with each of them in America also.

Parsons-Twesten gained interest in the exchange program through her German pen pal from junior high. While in Germany, she could relate to the other teenagers of the area. "They were just like us; they want to have fun just like we do," she commented.

Even though both countries have many similarities, there were some little differences. "Everything was smaller, like the roads and houses," Parsons-Twesten said.

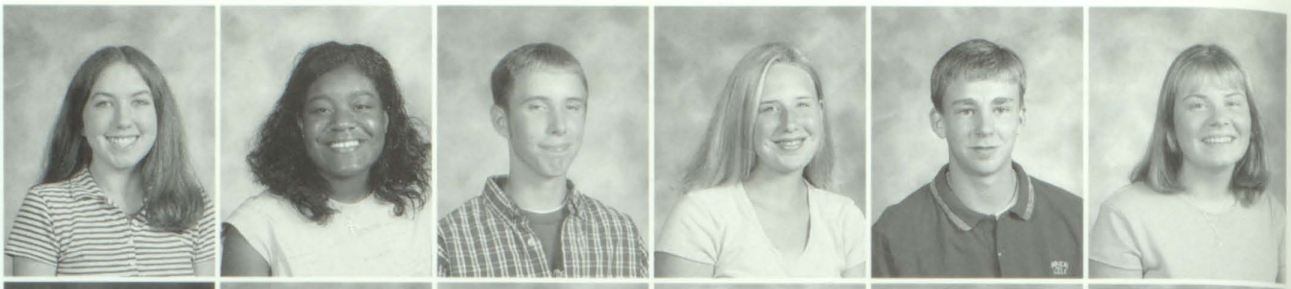

Cornett noticed that the houses were very high-tech. He also could not help but notice that the legal drinking age in Germany is sixteen. "I got to see that there is a totally different world out there," Cornett said.

Both said they would definitely return to Germany, but Cornett adds, "It really helps to know the language before you venture into a foreign country. • Paige Brubeck

... in the wake of terror

Ever since the September 11 tragedy, many West students have been recognizing the important spiritual elements in their lives. Many have awakened to a new-found interest in religion.

West is certainly full of people with a variety of religions. Catholicism is a popular branch of Christianity in this area. Out of a survey of 10 percent of West's population, 27 percent of students are Catholic.

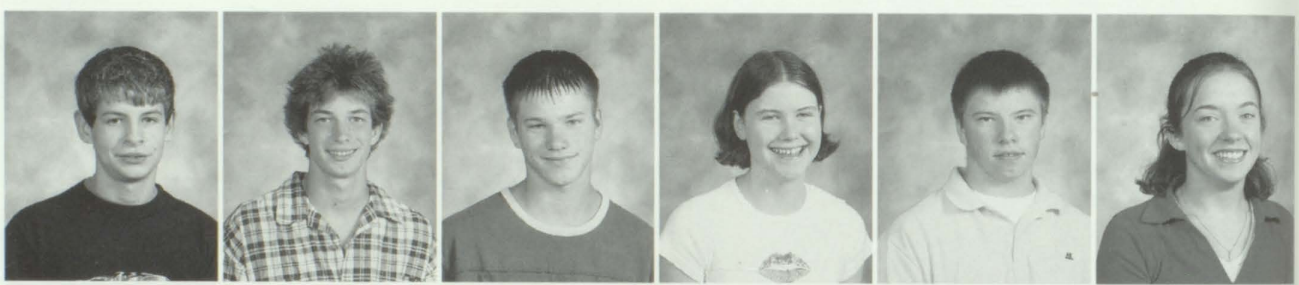

While religion is popular, some people do not feel a need for it in their lives.

"As much as I'd like to believe there is a supreme being, there just isn't evidence to prove it," Stacey Schneider ('04). • Stacy Obst

BUSTED!

What punishment do you serve when you've been naughty?

No television for a week, no internet for a weekend, and no telephone for two weeks. These are common punishments for teenagers. Some parents follow through with their punishments while others do not.

"I was supposed to be grounded from the internet and phone for a weekend. But it only lasted two seconds, because my mom and I talked it out," Laura Asbury ('04) said.

Some parents do follow through with their punishments even if their child is sorry.

"I try to compromise. Compromising is an art, a dangerous art, and it doesn't always work," Madelyn Boyne ('05) said.

Boyne added that when she gets grounded it lasts anywhere from a day to a week or two.

"I go to school. I come home. That's my day. Exciting, right?" Boyne explained sarcastically.

When sophomore Becky Greiman was younger, her parents put her toys in a trash bag and hid them in the attic for a month.

"I thought they threw all my toys away!" Greiman added.

Erin Conner's ('04) parents have a different outlook on punishment.

"I've never really gotten grounded. When I am in trouble, I talk it out with my parents. Although they are mad, they realize that I learn from my mistakes. But in order to learn, they have to show me the right way. Taking away TV won't show me what is right," Conner explained. • Sarah Haas

Prospective College Students:

WHERE IS YOUR MONEY COMING FROM?

You are preparing to hit the road for college. You have worked up a list of schools that look promising from academics, to size, to location, to first impressions. You're ready for the college life, but there is one thing missing: the money.

If this is true, you haven't thought about it hard enough. Endless amounts of scholarships lay out there. Thousands of them go untouched every year. One of the most popular websites for students is Colleges.com. It has a search for scholarships for everything you can think of. From GPA rank to daughters of veterans. You name it, and there's probably a scholarship for it. There is even a scholarship for left handed people. There are numerous ones ranging from $50 to $50,000. There is no reason anyone should head to college without a single scholarship. If you head off to college without any idea where the money is coming from, you may find yourself deeply into debt. Even if you have a plan to borrow your way through school, you many still be out of luck.

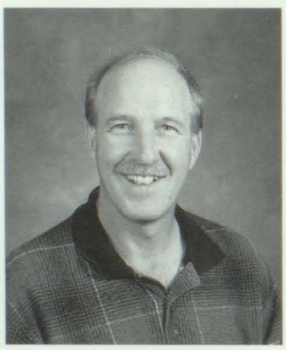

In the year 2000, more than 5 million students borrowed $10 billion for college. An estimated 12,000 American college students under the age of 25 will declare bankruptcy this year. Even among those who say they feel financially prepared, a majority have less than $10,000 in hand. This is at a time when college costs $90,000 and at a public school, more than $40,000.

Though this seems bad, there is some good news. The interest rate on college loans have fallen to their lowest levels in recent memory. And while you might assume that your only choice is to take out a loan, borrowing may not be necessary. You're immediate goal isn't to raise all four years of college costs; it's to get through the first year.

To avoid any surprises, financial experts advise visiting an aid officer periodically through college. Also, keep track of how fast the loan amounts are piling up, and make some post college plans on paying them off.

Experts also say to never carry a credit card at college. They believe that this may be one of the number one reasons for student debt. If you have it, then you charge everything. Studies show that the actual college students credit card balance is $2,748.

Being unprepared and not well planned can be a large problem in college life. The result: Students face financial disaster. The answer: Apply for tons of scholarships and keep track of your money. • Monica Weilbacher

STUDENTS NO LONGER HAVE SEMESTER EXAMS TO WORRY ABOUT OVER WINTER BREAK

This year West students received an early Christmas present. As voted by the school board, final exams were moved to the week before students are released for winter break.

Previously, finals were given a few days after students returned from two-week break. The decision to push exams forward seems to please both students and teachers.

"I like the idea of having finals before break because when we come back we won't have to cram for these huge tests. We can enjoy our break," Katie Kniepkamp ('03) stated.

"It is beneficial to me as a teacher because I do not have to worry about making up exams over Christmas," math teacher Mrs. Amy Wallis remarked.

Whether student or faculty, everyone enjoys the idea of a long, worry-free vacation. This could mark the era of a new tradition at Belleville West in years to come. • Julie Pickerel

TOURING Belleville West from a foriegn perspective ....

For Many high school students, the mere thought of transferring to a new school can make them shudder with anxiety. This, however is not the case for senior foreign exchange student Andre Silva and junior Hiro Higashi.

Silva came to Belleville West from Brazil in the beginning of the 2001-2002 school year, and quickly assimilated. "I made so many friends so fast," said Silva, "which helped me when I missed my friends in Brazil."

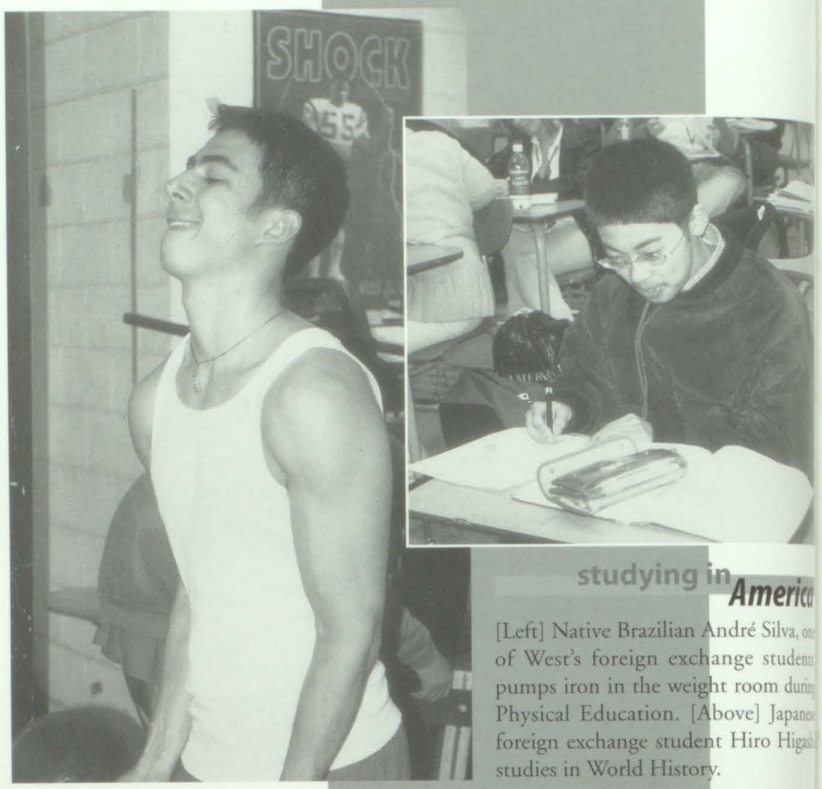

Although Andre made friends with ease, adapting to classes at Belleville West was more of an obstacle. "When I arrived here my English was pretty bad. I couldn't understand anything the teachers said, and my grades were bad." Silva's problems, however, were resolved shortly after moving in with senior Paul Toenjes.

This amazing opportunity to become immersed in an unfamiliar culture was well appreciated by Andre. He enjoyed the snow, cities, and most of all, the girls in America. Andre liked Belleville West as well, which he said was different from a Brazilian school. "In Brazil, students don't change classes-the teachers come to the students. Also, we're allowed to choose to go to school in the morning (7:00 a.m. to 12:45 p.m.) or in the afternoon (1:00 p.m. to 6:45 pm)

Junior Hiro Higashi comes to West from Nagoya, Japan. Hiro enjoys all of his classes, and he has also noted the difference that students move from class to class during the school day

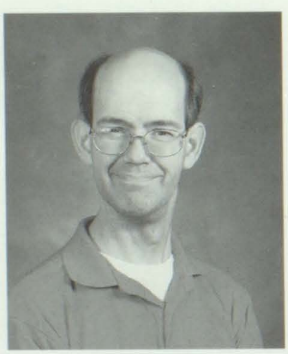

Higashi added, "Everyone in America has been really friendly."

Field trips provide an outdoor classroom

"It was interesting to see views of politicians, especially ones as radical as Ralph Nader."

• senior Dan Rybicki about the Political Science field trip to McKendree College.

Learning outside of school can offer insight to students that the classroom does not. Mr. Hentze's Political Science class attended a speech by Ralph Nader at McKendree College last fall. It provided a great way for students in the class to further their understanding of politics.

"It was interesting to see views of politicians, especially ones as radical as Ralph Nader," senior Dan Rybicki said about the field trip.

Field Trips are not limited to classes either. Several clubs embark on trips and retreats each year. Hy News, for example, participates in writing competitions held at SIUC and Eastern Illinois University. It is useful way to help staff members brush up on their writing skills.

" The competition at SIUC is really cool. It's different. You witness the journalism industry from a college perspective. It's very special too, because our work is acknowledged through awards," said senior Carlos Greer.

The Thespian Troupe also had the opportunity to see the production of "Proof" at Webster College in St. Louis.

"The show was absolutely amazing. We were able to talk to the actors afterwards and they told us about how they became actors, and what sort of things they do to prepare for the plays that they perform," commented senior Stacy Woehlke.

Field trips have proven to be a beneficial way for students to further their learning. • Brett Wobbe

ACT SAT TESTS!

This year all juniors took the ACT as part of the PSAE assessment in April. Constituting a great deal of many colleges' admission standards, both the ACT and SAT assessments are an important part of several West students' college preparation process.

The SAT assessment is divided into two different tests - the SAT I: Reasoning Test and the SAT II - Subject Tests. The ACT consists of four main parts - English, math, reading comprehension, and science reasoning skills.

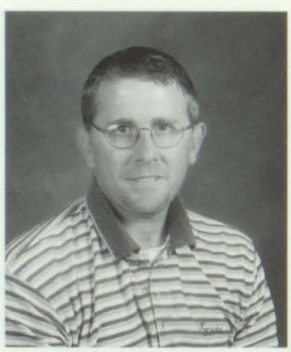

The importance of both ACT and SAT test scores when considering acceptance into college has some West students questioning the logic of putting such weight on one day's worth of assessment.

"I don't think it's fair at all that colleges weigh so heavily on ACT and SAT scores when considering admission. Those scores are not really a true measure of student capability," senior Pamela Wright said.

"It's not fair because anyone can have a bad test day. Someone could also just be bad at taking tests, but still be a really smart person," sophomore Erin Kinney said. • Jon Monteith

Advanced Placement
U.S. History provides new challenge

It has occupied an incaluable amount of studying time. Arguments have erupted between students at the simple mention of it. The school newpaper needed an entire page just to cover some of the concerns that it has caused. Due to its presence, the door to the guidance office seldom remained undisturbed for an entire semester.

Could one alteration to the school's social studies program really be the source of such attention? Undoubtedly, it was exactly that for a great deal of the year.

Before the start of the school year, the District 201 Board of Education decided to change the Honors U.S. History course to Advanced Placement U.S. History. The new class is designed to do a more successful job of preparing students for the AP History Test in May, which allows students to earn college credit. This is a significant change from the Honors History course taught in previous years, which was never intended to prepare students for the placement test.

With Mr. Brian Rickey as instructor, AP U.S. History deals with a vast compilation of American History, beginning with early explorations of North America to the present. The course is paced at a college level, while still maintaining the structure essential to a high school curriculum. Class instruction is varied, focusing primarily on class lectures, group projects, and numerous reading assignments.

Throughout the course of the year, several students have dropped the course for various reasons, time availability ranking high among them. However, an equal amount of dedicated students have remained in the class, ready to do what is neccessary in order ro achieve success.

George Washington Slept Here

Shakespeare once said that all the world's a stage, and West's faculty proved that to be true when they performed George Washington Slept Here. Ms. Laurie Bielong and Mr. John Lodle directed the first faculty play in six years.

"We were looking for a fun family comedy with a larger cast. Kaufman and Hart comedies tend to use a lot of situational humor which are fun to act in and watch," Ms. Bielong said.

The play is about Newton Fuller (Dr. George Shea), who looks at a run down farmhouse that George Washington supposedly slept in. Despite his wife's (Ms. Jennifer Sage) protests, Fuller decides to buy the house. Everything possible goes wrong as the couple tries to renovate the house.

The cast spent three days in June rehearsing and twelve days in August. The set was built the last week of July. Many theatre students also helped out to make the play a success. For the show's logo, former West graduate, David Carr mimicked the famous painting of Washington crossing the Delaware River. He then did a caricature of the faculty to fit their characters.

"I like it and it's fun because you get to work with and see your colleagues in a totally different way. It brings us together and makes us a little more like a family," Dr. George Shea said.

"It was a fun production, and we used it a fund-raiser for the theatre department. We have so many talented people here at West!" Ms. Bielong said. • Sarah Schuessler

Debate Team

Speech Team

Attracts more people every year

West's speech and acting team had a turn around year in 2002. Coach Mr. Adam Jenkins lead the team to many new successes.

"The team went from about five members by the end of the season, to about twenty-five members. I didn't expect the team to grow this fast, and I'm hoping it will be even larger next year," Mr. Jenkins said.

Mr. Jenkins won the coach of the year award for the Egyptian Forensics League. "EFL" is the league of all tournaments that Belleville West competes in.

Last year Speech team was composed of 15 students at the beginning of the season. This year, the team almost doubled with 26 members to start the season.

"Not only have we grown in numbers, but we have also grown in experience. I think that is apparent in our success with the group interpretation," Kyle Kratky ('02) said.

The speech team competed in a end of the season group play for the first time in many years. This play category is called group interpretation. After their first-place success at sectionals, the cast performed in "group interp" for many West students with a performance every hour. Even though it was their first year competing in this event, they walked away with an outstanding fifth place at state. The members worked hard to get to this level. They took time every day to practice together to get the team at its best.

Also during the season, speech team members spent many hours practicing with Mr. Jenkins to make worthwhile those five-thirty in the morning departures from West to the tournaments.

"Speech team requires a lot of practice and many early-hour weekends, but it is worth it for the skills learned and the friends made," Krey Leesman ('03) said.

This year the team had six returning members who helped contribute to the success of the team. But the underclassmen played a very important role in this years team, with many freshmen and sophomores placing high in tournaments.

"As a freshman, I wasn't sure what to expect, but I loved being involved in the group interp. I participated in an event called impromptu, which requires you to write a speech on site with the topic they give you. I think it was great practice for writing, which helped me in my classes," Andrew Kruep ('05) said.

"I had a blast being involved in Speech team, especially group interp, and I was sad to see it end when the season was over," Erin Conner ('04) said.

Even though speech team had an incredible turnaround year, many are looking forward to next year. Next year many members are planning to return to continue that success.

" I am looking forward to all of the returning members and the freshmen coming in to expand our team. We are hoping to compete with the larger school more next year," Christina Simonin ('03) said. • Hannah Shea and Brittany Wrubel

Erin Conner ('04) acts out the "stuff in the sink" as Kyle Kratky ('02) and Danielle Borsch ('02) react in disgust. In this portion of All I Really Need to Know I Learned in Kindergarten the cast demostrates that being an adult is dirty work— but somebody has to do it.

INTELLIGENCE LEADS THE WAYS

Every year high school students stress out when it comes close to test time. Tests are nothing but cramming, staying up until three in the morning and then wishing that you get at least a "D." This doesn't appeal to many students, but those are the objectives that appeal to students in WYSE.

WYSE stands for the World Youth in Science and Engineering. It is sponsored by Mr. Endsley. This group of students prepare to take tests in subjects like physics, biology, English, math, chemistry, computer graphics and engineering. Members pick two of these categories to compete in.

"Many of the tests taken in WYSE are harder than tests taken in the classroom," Mr Endsley said.

Every year, for the past four years, someone from Belleville West has placed in the top two competitions. Mr. Endsley has taken at least one student to state each year.

The students don't have daily meetings, but they get together before the competitions to review materials.

"Since I'm going into engineering, WYSE presents a good opportunity to see how well my math and computer skills are," Bob Prescott ('02) said.

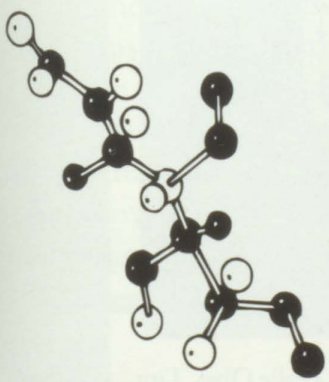

This is a program where students seem to work hard, and put their minds to somthing! • Becky Randolph

"It is very different from other clubs I am in, and it is a lot of fun," Dan Pietroburgo ('03) said.

"My favorite part is that Odyssey of the Mind is unlike regular theater. We make up our own play and have the freedom to do what we want," Jordan Bay ('04) said.

"It allows us to think differently than in a classroom situation. It is also a good way to have fun performing," Lindsay Martz ('03) said.

"Odyssey of the Mind allows me to release my creative energy, and we have blast working together," Stacey Woehlke ('02) said.

"It lets us a lot to our creativity. We write songs and the script, and make costumes and the set," Sarah Jones ('02) said.

"Last year I was asked to replace a member, and I liked it so much, I continued this year," Stewart Calhoun ('03) said.

"You get really close to the people you work with. This is the only time I've gotten to act in somthing I helped write," Sarah Schuessler ('04) said.

the write stuff

Filled with the works of students, Page One is hardly one page. A blend of talent comes together to produce a fifty page boolet of short stories, poetry, photos and art. Each year the number of submissions grows greatly.

"We had over 250 submissions and the staff narrowed it down to about thirty-five pieces of writing and thirty pieces of artwork," advisor Mr. John Lodle said.

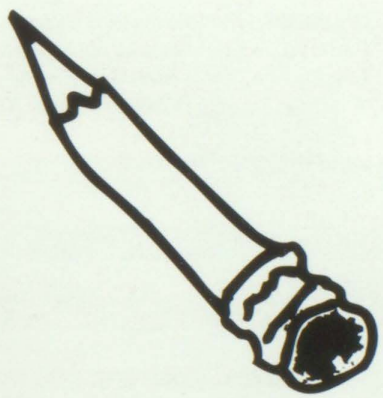

Weekly meetings, held of Monday mornings, consist of everyone coming together to dicuss what improvements can be made. Second semester, things really start to get more intense for the staff becasue that is when all the work begins to pile up.

The staff of fifteen reads through all the submissions individually without the author's name on them. Then the separtate staffs come together, match the names up with the piecies of work and decide what they want to keep.

"The students do everything from deciding what will go into the magazine to helping work on the layout and retyping the actual stories. The editors of each section also help suggest revisions," Lodle said.

Overall, the production is made for the students by the students and is an opportunity for everyone to showcase their creative side. • Lauren Williams

Ms. Laurie Bielong,
Hy News adviser

Q. How many years have you advised the production of Hy News?

A. Nine years.

Q: Why so you continue to advise?

A: Student news is an important aspect of student experience, and I enjoy working with the students.

Q: What is you favorite memory about Hy News?

A: My best memory was at the Christmas party at the bowling alley.

Q: What are some changes that have recently been made to Hy News?

A: We re-added the entertainment section.

Q: What are ypour goals for the remainder of the year?

A: We want to produce the best publication we can, and do well in competitions. If we win 1st at EIHSPA, I'll run down the building screaming!

Hy News continues to make headlines

Admittedly, HyNews did not almost burn down the "L" building making popcorn this year, but they are still managing to make news. Leigh Shelton, who is editor-in-chief this year, put forth many long hours of production along with Ms. Laurie Bielong, who is the HyNews adviser.

Time, patience and work are spread between interviewing, writing, editing, photographing, drawing, making headlines and editing again. The paper covers all different topics and this year was no exception. Articles ranged from the September 11 terrorist attacks issuesto point counterpoint on premarital sex. A blend of personalites came together to make each section well-rounded.

"It's fun to work with all the different people on staff because we have a good time, but we also get the work done too. It just makes it easier to be able to work with good people that you get along with," sophomore Danielle Sturgis said.

HyNews's monthly distribution provided students not only with knowledge and entertainment, but it often times made for a good weapon to bop a friend on the head with.

"When I see everyone beating each other with the paper, it kind of defeats the purpose of passing them all out, but I am sure they read it after their little 'paper wars'," junior Suzy Fitzgerald said.

Other than the few minor problems of meeting deadlines, HyNews had a smooth year of production along with a year full of memories.

DECA

DEVELOPING STRATEGIES
EARNING MONEY
COMMUNITY SERVICE
A.M. SCHOOL DAY

Many students would appreciate a shorter school day. DECA provides this benefit along with numerous other opportunities.

DECA allows students to earn triple credit by working at local market-related businesses such as: Target, Ruby Tuesdays, and Tire and Auto. Members attend morning classes and are then released as early 11:30 a.m. to go to work.

"DECA is a club that teaches big business technique skills you need to be successful," Jenni Heidenfelder ('02) said.

Chelsea Erlinger ('02) expanded on Heidenfelder's thoughts. "This program teaches marketing by integrating work situations into the classroom content, using clasroom theories as a basis for making decisions, and solving problems in the work environment," Erlinger said.

Outside the classroom, DECA participates in community service events.

"It is a great opportuntity for students to get exposure to business fields, community service, and social events. It's a very well rounded program," Mr. Caswell, business teacher and DECA sponsor, said.

DECA has proved to be beneficial program, and members have found it to produce benefits when it involves an important topic for teens: money.

"DECA is efficient; you learn marketing techniques and you also learn how to do your own taxes, so the government can't cheat you out of money," Erlinger said. •Stacey Obst

LATIN DANCE TEAM

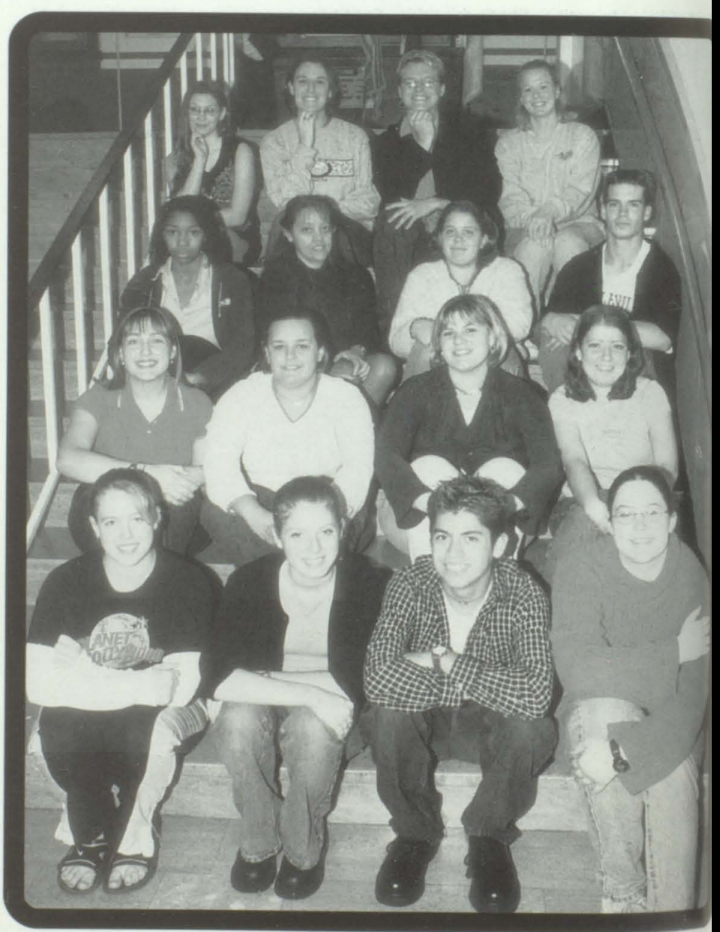

The Latin Dance Team is a very unique activity that offers an in-depth look at the Hispanic culture. The team is the only one of it's kind in Illinois. Sra. Moran is the advisor and is also the person in charge of teaching both the traditional and modern dances. Everyone had to work very hard in order to learn many dances at once.

"We have meetings the first Thursday of every month to discuss performances, fund-raisers and presentations," Sra. Moran said.

They have two Sunshine performances; one at the local nursing home and one at Longacre Park which if for the physically challenged. Latin Dance Team also attended the Global Fest at Urbana High School. Having a special visitor come to dance with them at a performance in the auditorium was also a highlight of the year.

"We invited nine different schools to come and see us perform with Justo Lamas. He is a wonderful dancer and all around performer," Sra. Moran said.

Latin Dance Team provides students with the opportunity to learn not only about different music, but also about a different culture as a whole. • Brittany Wrubel

MUSIC to our EARS

Fingers a-snapping, toes a-tapping and dresses a-twirling, all part of a Maroon Majic performance. It all starts off with a try out, where some serious competition takes place. Once the group is chosen, it's high kicks and steady voices from there on out.

"I love to sing and dance. It is so much fun and it is my favorite class," Lisa Bieri ('02) said.

The talented group entertains through singing and dancing; yes they do this simutaneously. These 24 girls, and boys dance in partners and perform in a concert each semester and also spread their talent through events in the community.

"It is a lot of fun and I love to sing and dance, but I really only try to dance," Ryan Frank ('02) said.

Mrs. Carter is the vocal instructor, as well as the choreographer for all the dances that Maroon Majic performs. Their music is usually about five to six songs and comes from all different kinds of plays, musicals, movies, and songs from the radio.

The group learns the first set of dances to perform at the end of the semester. After the Christmas break, they learn a new routine for the remainder of the year.

"This is by far the best class that I have ever taken. Everyone should try out and do it," Bieri said.

Cross Country Is...

Taking the Scenic Route

The boys and girls cross country team did exceptionally well this year. All of their hard work and practicing through the hot summer paid off for them in the end. The team began practice in June and ran double sessions the week before school began.

"A big accomplishment for us this year was winning the City Championship," Junior Ashlee Kreher said.

In addition to the girls receiving the title of City Champions, the boys also shared in this title. Freshman Meghan Zahn and sophomore Ryan Eller were individually City Champions as well. This was Eller's second consecutive year to earn this title.

At the regional competition, the girls finished strong with a 5th place. This qualified them to advance to sectionals. Although the boys as a team did not qualify, Eller attended Sectionals as an individual.

This year, many new faces appeared for tryouts. Some did it to keep in shape for another sport and others simply to be involved. These new runners added a fresh new attitude to the team and kept everyone going.

Practices for the cross country team only last about an hour to an hour and a half, but they do more in that time than many other sports. They run at least 5 miles every practice, up and down downtown Belleville and around the city. They work hard everyday and for good reason. In competition, the girls run 2.5 miles and the boys run 3 miles.

Junior Jon Monteith summed up the season by saying, "Without a doubt, it is extremely hard work. It has innumerable benefits, though. Just to be able to run over 3 miles and still have enough energy within you to push on, is one of the most rewarding feelings. How many other West kids can do what we do?" • Katie Williams

Although separate, the boys' and girls' teams are very close. They cheer each other on and keep one another running until the end.

Maroon Football

holding them Back

The Maroon's defense stops East's offense in its tracks. West's defense was very strong this year and held many teams back.

ready to Attack

On the defensive, the Maroons were ready for anything the opponents could throw at them. They were able to intercept many passes and stop other teams in their tracks.

Year after year, fans crowd into Township Stadium to cheer on the Mighty Maroons football team. This year, fans really had something to cheer about. The team did exceptionally well this year. The biggest treat for the fans and the team was when they reached playoffs.

"We made it to playoffs for the first time in a very long time. I think that was one of our biggest accomplishments this year," junior Mike Meier said.

"We definitely pulled together as a team and that helped us make it as far as we did," junior Reynaldo Mendoza said.

Besides playoffs, the team had many victories that meant a lot to the team. Their win over city rival Althoff hadn't been expected and hadn't happened for the last several years. However, the team pushed through the entire game and came out on top. They also came from behind in their game against O'Fallon and won, qualifying them for the playoffs.

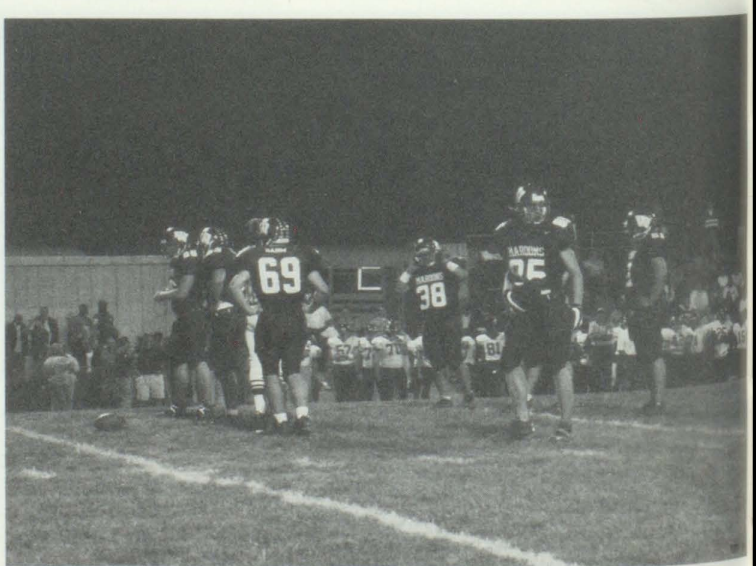

Many factors contributed to the team's success. Head coach, Dennis Snep, as well as their many assistant coaches pushed the team to their limits every practice and kept them training even during the off-season. A new edition to the team, senior place-kicker Kyle Zaber, also added a lot to the team.

"I really enjoyed being on the team and I am glad that I could contribute something. I had a lot of fun this year kicking for the team," Zaber said.

The team ended with a 5-5 record. However, they plan to improve on this next year. They hope to have a winning record as well as win the City Championship, which includes beating Althoff and Belleville East, and advance further in the playoffs.

Preparation to reach these goals began right at the season's end. The entire team has been in the weight room every day after school and keeps in shape by running the stadium stairs and track. The coaches also hold training sessions after school where they run sprints and do conditioning drills.

"We are really going to push ourselves in the weight room this off-season. We are going to have to be very strong to compete next year and accomplish all that we want to," Meier said. • Randi Roberts

huddle Up

The team anxiously awaits a play to be called from the sidelines. With all the plays the team runs, it is difficult for any opponent to catch on.

Junior Max Harres drives the ball to the green. Harres has been one of the most successful players on the team since his freshman year.

The boys golf team ended their season with an impressive 9 3 record. The season was brought to a start with the St. Clair Tournament. Here they took first place for the second consecu tive year.

The team is led by junior and captain Max Harres. He seemed satisfied with the team's performance this year. Harres, who has been a varstiy golfer since his freshman year, helped their improvement tremendously.

"All of our scores at the tournaments improved since last year. We seemed very focused and we performed at the top of our game. I was very proud of our team as a whole," Harres said.

Seniors Chris Hornbostel, Scott Marchand, Eric Rohr and Brandon Webster also added their experience and skill to the team. These talented players and Coach Clayton Fischer's direction helped the team achieve new goals and receive new honors.

At every practice the players learn something new. They practice hard and it seems like this year their hard work paid off. They proved that they could be one of the best teams in th area.

At the Mascoutah Invitational, the team brought home a first place finish. Then, Regionals let them show off their talents again and they ended in third place. This gave them th chance to compete at the state competition. All of the players did well here and Erice Rohr reached a goal and finished withi the top 25 golfers in the tournament.

With all of their dedication working for them, it is no surprise that they ended the season with a winning record and many individual awards.

"Overall, I think it was a big accomplishment for us to mak it to state. Not very many people think that we could do it. W never really expected it. We had a really good season and I'm definitely looking forward to another one next year," Harres said. -Katie Williams

Ace Marks the Spot

The L:ady Maroons tennis team ended the season with an undefeated dual meet record of 10-0, which led to a first place finish in the SouthwesternConference.

The girls were very successful in tournaments this year also. The team placed in the Champaign Centennial, the Great Eight Championship at the University of Missouri, the Bloomington Purple Invitational and the Southwest Conference Tournament. They also received first in many prestigious tournaments like the Bloomington Gold Invitational, the Belleville East Invitational and the Belleville East Sectional.

"We all worked really well together this year. We cheered each other on in tough matches and it makes a big difference when everyone works as a team," sophomore Mari Costello said.

For many players, their season doesn't start or end the same as the school season. Most of the girls play all through the year. They also keep in shape throughout the season by running and lifting weights. Many even travel to get the chance to play at higher levels and learn new techniques.

"I spent three weeks in Texas and played five hours a day right before tryouts to get ready for the season," senior Lindsey Irwin said.

One of the biggest accomplishments for this team was their 10th place finish at the IHSA State Tournament.

"I had special pride for the way these girls played considering the number of seniors that graduated last year. They worked exceptionally hard and had a tremendous work ethic and positive team attitude throughout the season. This season turned out to be a lot of fun," Coach Bob Keefe said.

The team advanced in the CYC tournament for the first time in West history. The boys also captured the championship at the Alton tournament by defeating Alton Marquette in the championship game. Alton Marquette was ranked in the top five of the St. Louis area polls and previously only had one loss.

"I had been looking forward to this year since my first year here at West. We had a very good team and a great bunch of guys that were a pleasure to coach. We had a successful season although it did not end the way we would have liked. I think the guys deserved more than what they got," varsity coach Jason Mathenia said.

Many members of the Belleville West team were recognized for individual honors. Senior Kyle Zaber was named to the All State first team, the All State Conference first team and the Alton All Tournament team. Senior Todd Davis made the All Sectional first team, All Conference first team and the Alton All Tournament team. This season was one of transition and innovation for the varsity volleyball team. After losing 5 of the 6 starters from last year, Coach Charles Rodman had the task of putting together a new team.

"We tried out a lot of new lineups and new people on each position. We ended up changing our rotation mid-season but we came out with something that worked out well for us," junior Katelyn Panzau said.

The varsity team ended the season with a record of 28-11. They attended many prestigious tournaments and did well in all of them. They took home a first place trophy from the Quincy Invitational and placed well in the other tournaments.

With a new line up in the works, many players got into positions that weren't normally their spot.

"I was a middle last year and ended up playing right side in this rotation. I think this was good for our team because we all got to try out something new and we got a lot of experience from it," junior Jennie Holtgrewe said.

Next season, the team has many goals to accomplish. Their biggest goal is to win the State Competition. They also would like to win many of the tournaments and have an undefeated season.

"I really think we could win state next year. We have a lot of great players and we are all very determined to win. It will be interesting to see how we will come together next year and what will happen when the new line up comes out," Panzau said.

Coach Charles Rodman had a very big honor this year. He celebrated his 700th win in his coaching career; an honor that only one other Illinois coach has had.

The Junior Varsity team also had a fantastic year. Led by Coach Jane Sperry, the team ended the season undefeated and City Champions. Only one other team has been undefeated under Coach Sperry. • Suzy Fitzgerald

Girls Basketball

They Lead While Others Follow

The girls basketball team had kind of a rocky season, ending the year with a 6-19 record. This year's captains were Christine Betz ('02), Crystal Pardiek ('02), and Jamie Bereitschaft ('02). The three captains, along with Julie O'Donnell ('02), helped lead the team and provide necessary encouragement.

"Even though we lost some, we still put a lot of effort into our games. I'm proud of all the girls who played this year," said Betz.

Although the girls experienced some losses, they still have a lot they can be proud of.

"We lacked offense at times, but we played really good defensively. Jamie Bereitschaft had a great defensive year," said Katelyn Panzau ('03).

"We beat Belleville East twice! That was pretty nice," Betz said.

Along with beating East and having a good defensive year, Mari Castello ('04) advanced to state finals individually. The girls are already thinking of next year and what can be done differently.

"We've had some meetings on what we can be working on in the off-season. Also, we are going to try to become closer as a team. We'll be attending a team camp this summer to help with that. Even if our outcome wasn't so good this year, we are going to have a really good season next year," said Julie Ehret ('03). • Katie Williams

Boys Basketball

Leading the way and pushing ahead

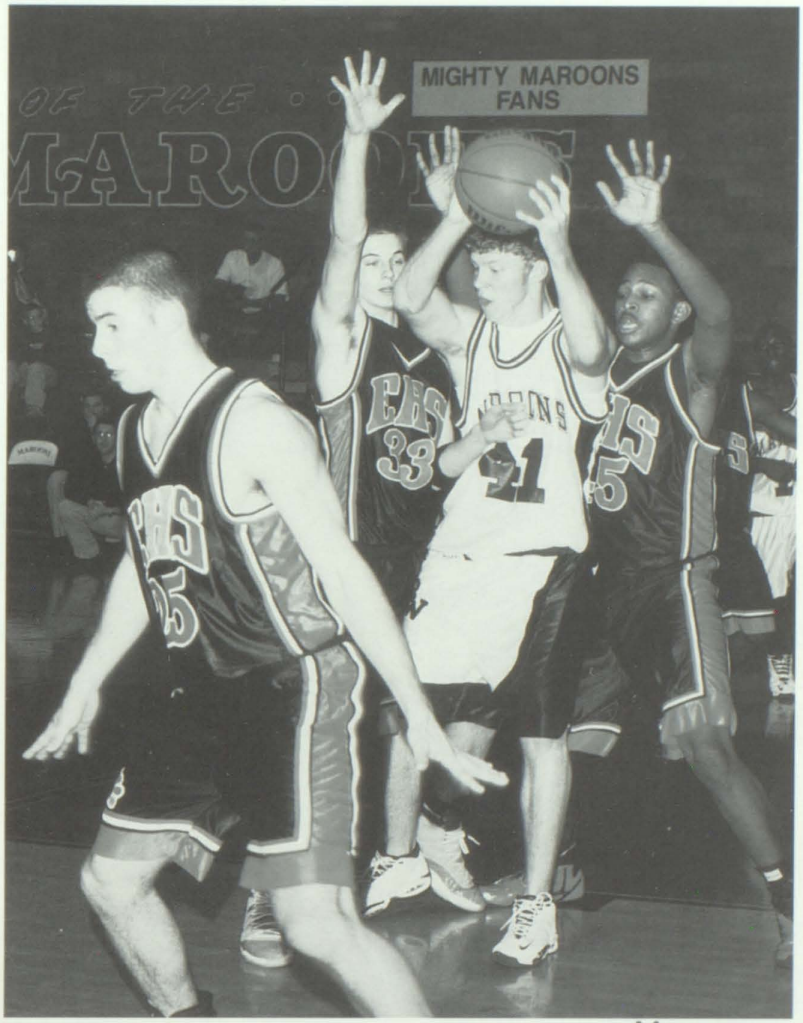

When the sky is dreary and the weather is cold, Belleville West fans flock to watch the boys' basketball team. This year the team ended their season with a 16-11 record, including nine wins and five losses in the conference.

The team defeated city rivals Althoff and East in adrenaline filled games. However, a 52-47 loss to Collinsville in overtime left the team one win short of a conference championship. "We beat Collinsville once towards the start of the season. It was a great win because they were voted the best team of the area. Yet, it was kind of heartbreaking to lose the conference to them," Jake Holtgrewe ('02) said.

Despite this disappointment, the boys accomplished their shared goal of reaching the championship game of the East Tournament, but they weren't able to capture a win.

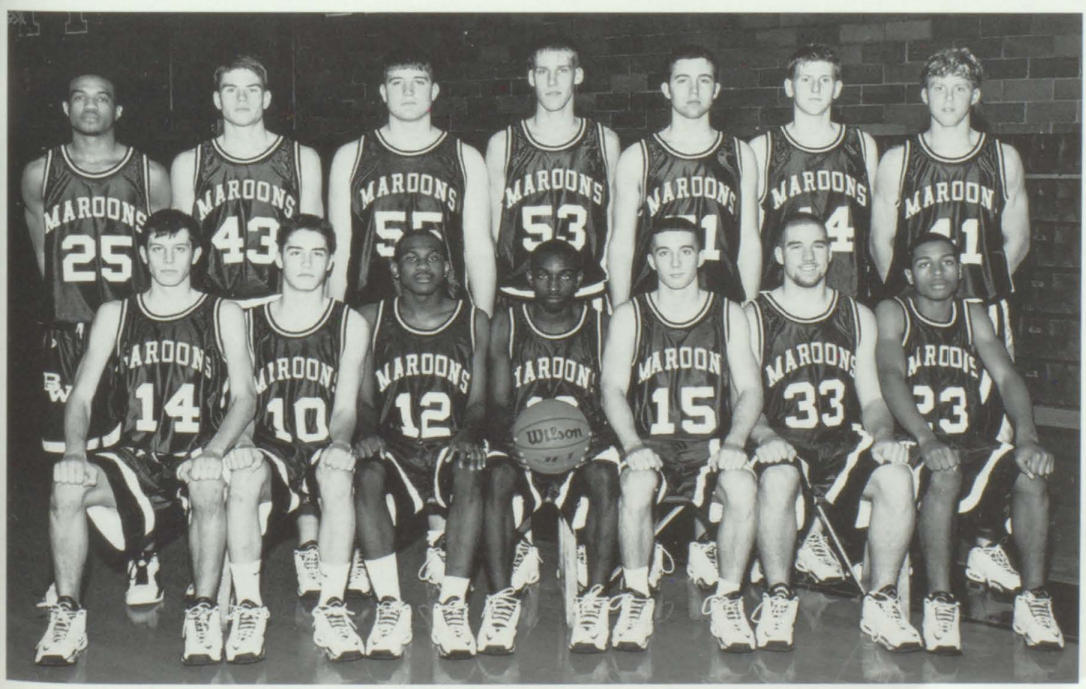

"The season started out kind of slow, but we improved. We had a lot of new guys on the team, but we got used to their style of play and were successful. We beat some teams that we weren't expecting to beat," Holtgrewe said.

"We were pretty satisfied with this season. We practiced hard and learned a lot from our coaches and each other. We started to work like a team, and it paid off," forward, Josh Luecking said. • Randi Roberts

Leading The Crowd

The Cheerleaders Push the Team to Victory

The cheerleading squad started out the year with many changes. For the first time ever, freshmen were allowed on the varsity squad. Four members of the class of 2005 were added this year including, Lara Bosick, Brandi Frischkorn, Lindsey Reinhardt, and Jackie Wessel.

"Adding freshmen to the squad really made the team seem younger," said Lauren Blick ('02), "but it also made our team more unique than previous years."

Another change this year was the addition of a male. Previously, the cheerleading squad was strictly all girls. But that has changed as of 2001. D.J. Cotton ('03) was added to the roster this year.

"D.J. was always pumping us up. He was a great influence to the squad. I really enjoyed having him as a teammate this year," said Kelli Smith ('03).

The cheerleaders used these changes to their advantage. They practiced everyday for seven months, starting in August and not ending until mid-March. They cheer the football and boys basketball games.

"Our schedule is really hectic and it is always pushing us to our limits. We just discipline ourselves to stick with it," said Emily Vogel ('02).

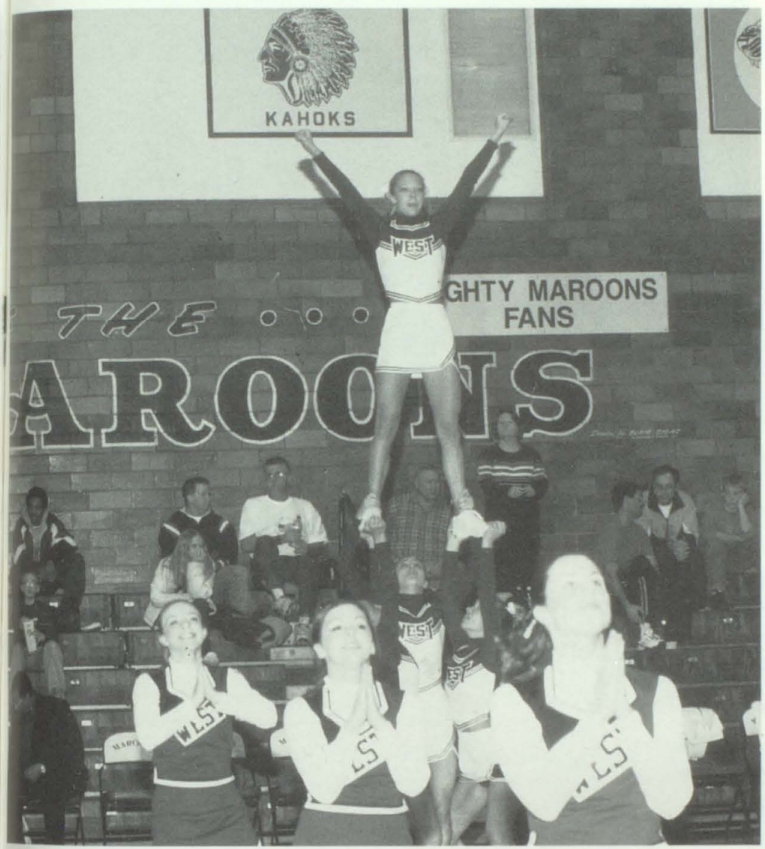

The squad also goes to numerous competitions. They compete with a two and a half minute routine that includes stunting, dance, cheer, and crowd interaction. They must first take this routine to a regional competition to try to qualify for state. The team went to the Highland and Mt. Vernon regionals. They qualified at Highland and went on to Mt. Vernon to get as much practice in front of a crowd as possible. They then went on to the State competition held in Springfield. They placed 6th out of twenty-nine teams.

"I felt that we did our very best at State. It doesn't matter what anyone else thinks, just that we know we did the best we could," said Christy Metzger ('03).

Traveling in Style

Belleville West Dance Team

The dance team season begins with the team going to camp held at Illinois State campus in Bloomington, Illinois. At camp the girls learn many routines and even compete with a routine they brought from home. They compete against twenty other teams. This year the team placed third in the camp. After camp, the girls came home and began practicing for other performances. These included dancing at the "Maroon and White Scrimmage Night" for football and at a St. Louis Cardinals baseball game.

During this busy schedule, the girls also find time for other activities. They encourage other teams, like the boys' basketball, soccer and football teams, by decorating their rooms and lockers. The girls also spend their free time attending local dance studios.

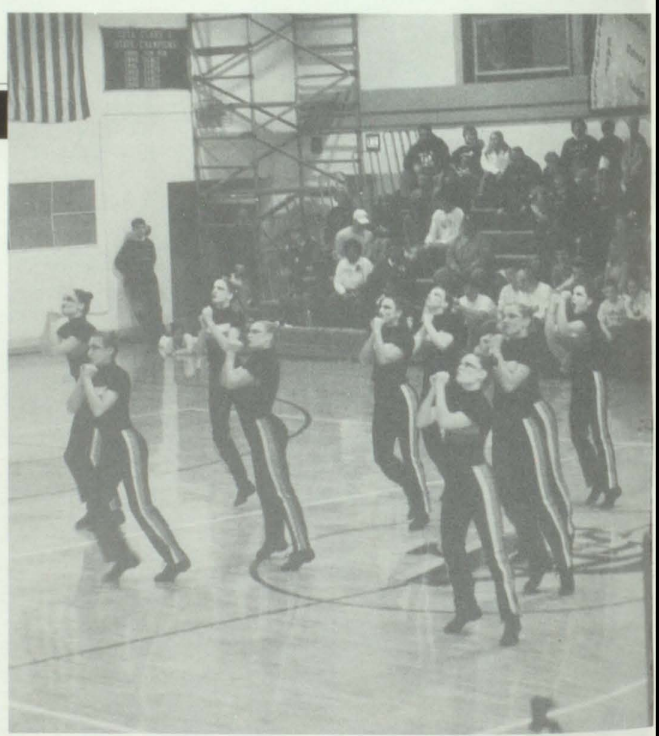

"This year's team is more technically advanced compared to last year," said Lisa Beiri ('02). This year is the first with every member of the team to have had prior dance experience.

The team then begins to learn their competition routines. Their dance one this year showed the crowd a more feminine mood to the song "Kiss, Kiss". Their aerobic funk routine was to a robotic, eighties-themed song. They performed these routines at basketball games and at competitions.

"Fan support this year has been overwhelming at the games as well as competitions. It pumps us all up and makes us preform well," said Krista Carson ('04).

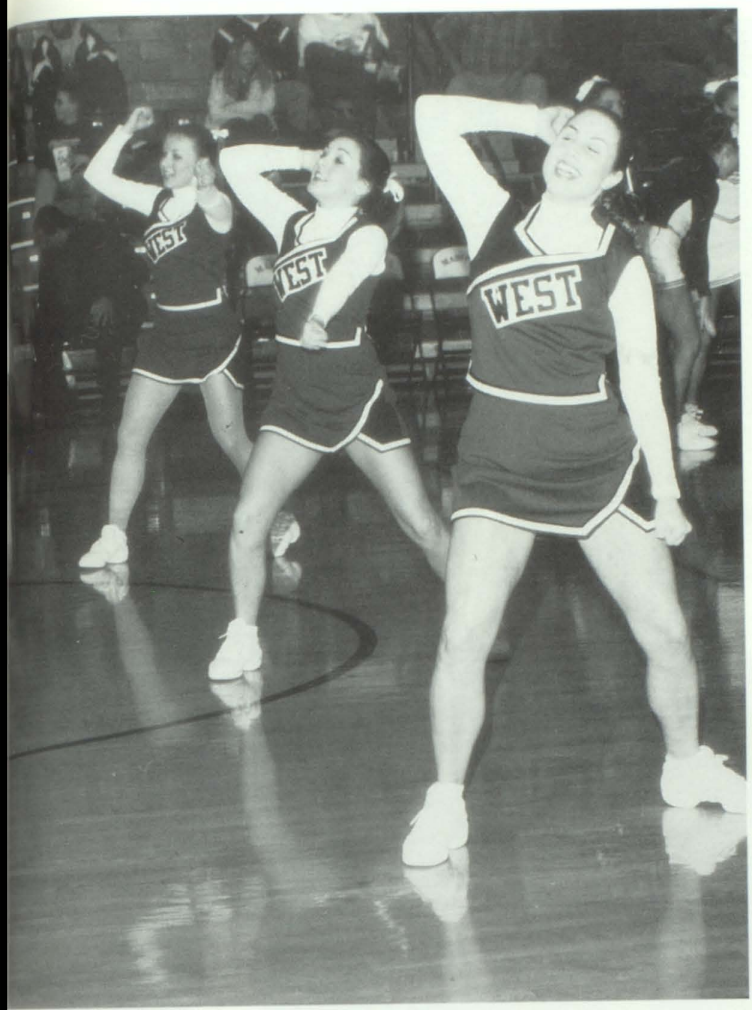

The first competition was held at Mascoutah High School where they placed first in the AAA Dance category and first in the AAA Funk category. The dance team also got the highest score of the day. The second competition was held at Althoff High School. Here they placed first in both categories.

At the end of the season, the dance team prepared for Super Sectionals and state. "So far we've met and exceeded expectations, and, hopefully, we will continue to do so at state level," said Mrs. Lisa Quandt, dance team coach. • Monica Castello

Bowlers master another season

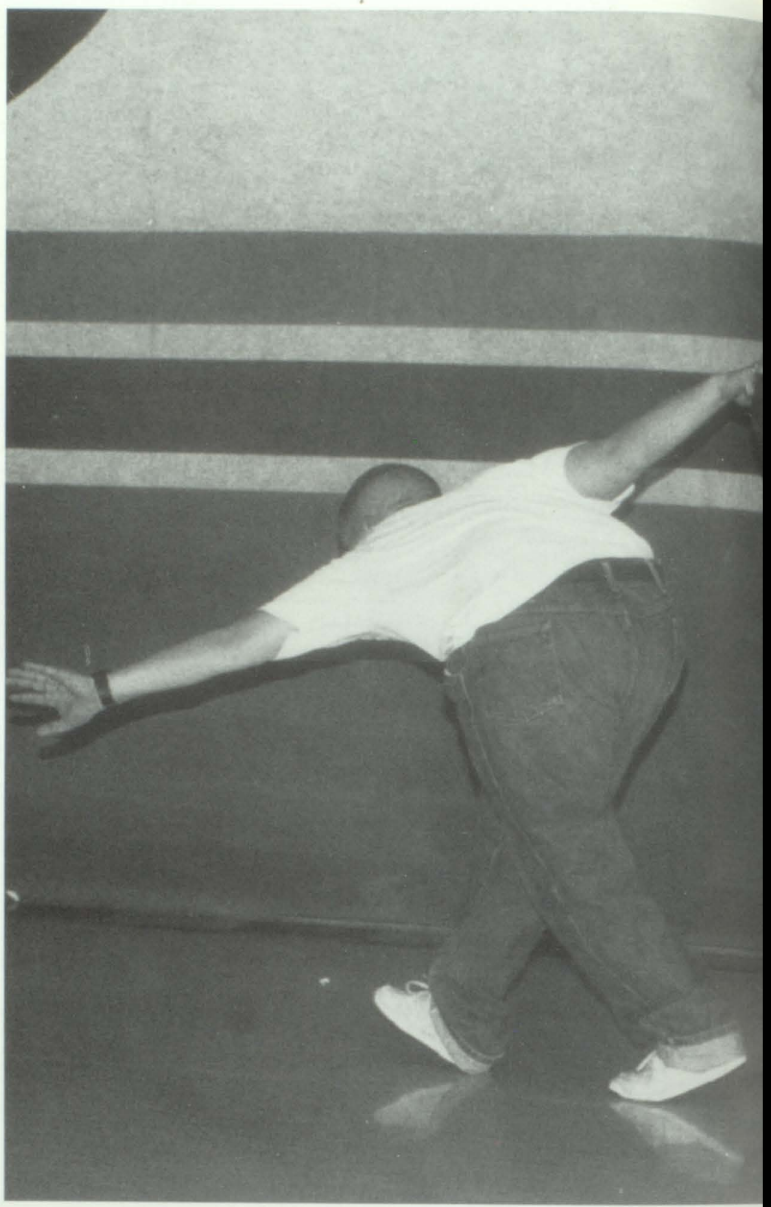

The bowling team had a great year, according to Coach John LeCuyer. After many practices held at the local Bel-Air Bowl, the team went on to enter in various competitions.

The boys won the Conference Championship and a chance to move forward on to state. They took this chance and placed 10th at the state level. Boys and girls can move on to state as individuals, as well. In these individuals, for boys, Ryan Freivogel ('02) placed 11th on the first day of state competition. On the last day of state, there is a "scratch board" tournament. Ryan placed 4th in this tournament and received two hundred and fifty dollars in scholarships.

The girls also contributed to this successful year. They placed 2nd in the Holiday Tournament and received 4th in sectionals. This qualified them to move on to state, as well, which was held in Rockford, Illinois. Amanda Stonesifer ('02) also qualified as an individual to move on to state. According to Christine Lukie ('03), Amanda and Tammi Ridenour ('02) contributed a lot to the girls team. "Amanda and Tammi were leaders for the girls. I feel that the girls did much better this year then last year."

"We had an amazing season," stated Coach LeCuyer.

Swimming: West's off-campus sport

Each year, several students at Belleville West decide to swim competively for the school even though West does not have an official "swim team".

Brian Flynn ('03) reperesented Belleville West at the Sectional Meet held in Quincy on February 16. he placed 2nd in the one hundered yard backstroke and 3rd in the one hundered yard freestyle. Flynn practices on his own by swimming with his team at the YMCA.

"It's a lot of hard work. I didn't make it to state this year, but hopefully I'll make it next year," Flynn said.

There were several girls who reperesented West this year. Mooly Mernick ('02), Linlee Otten ('02), Erin Darte ('03), Courtney Edwards ('04), Kelsey Dockins ('05), and Lauren Scharf ('05) all swam at the sectional meet held on November 17. Although they did not place overall, the girls placed in many of their heats.

"One of the goals I have for next year is to place 1st in my heat. It was hard preparing for the meet, but I was satisfied with how I swam," Scharf stated.

Molly Merenick still enjoys swimming at the meet even if it isn't with a so-called team.

"It's a good experience to see what our competition would be if we were a highschool team." • Jessica Jobin there was a new way to get to downtown Belleville. A new route opened near the sixth block of West Main Street which sends cars directly to the fountain. Belleville city leaders felt that this improvement would allow citizens more ease in using Belleville's downtown businesses. Meanwhile, the old coupler that sends traffic around downtown is still widely in use.

BABY ADS

Andria,

I remember when you were born, two weeks early. You weighed barely four pounds when we brought you home. You were our miracle, a precious gift of life. I spent many hours watching you sleep, tiny fingers and toes, curled into a little ball, wispy hair poking from beneath a flannel blanket, sweet baby breaths.

I remember your first steps, teetering precariously on the kitchen linoleum, white leather shoes with jingle bell laces, mustered determination, one step and then another. In no time you were racing alongside Chelsea, immersed in the business of twins, waving at me from across the yard. "Bye bye Momma."

I remember your first day of school, spotless in your new flowered dress, bookbag clutched in your little hand, ponytail bobbing away from me into an exciting world. "Bye Mom. See you after kindergarten."

I remember all those first days of each school year, posing for a photo, white sneakers gleaming in the August morning. Each year you grew a little more into your own, smart, adventurous, hopeful, independent. "Bye Mom. See you after school."

I remember your junior high graduation dance, all dressed up, meticulous beauty queen hair, a bit of makeup, sparkly jewelry, a nervous grin, a quick hug, dash out the door; and me waving proudly, a smile for my girl, a lump in my throat. "Bye Mom. I'll be home later."

I remember your first day driving, permit in hand, confidence front and center. Did you know I was terrified? Whew! We made it through. You proudly carry your driver's license, a badge of maturity, wheels with which to see the world. "Bye Mom. Do you have any money for gas?"

I remember our first university campus visit, following behind a tour guide, excited, apprehensive, and me trying to imagine your calling a dorm room "home". Next August will be here in the blink of an eye. Another first day of school for you. "Bye Mom. I'll see you at Thanksgiving."

Always remember no matter how many goodbyes we share, your dad and I will always be here, a safe place where you can come home. You are still our miracle, our gift of life, blessing us with much love and laughter. Dad and I are very proud of you honey. Chase your dreams wherever they lead and know that we love you.
Always, Mom

Chelsea,

I can't imagine where the past seventeen years have gone. Just yesterday I was chasing you as you explored your environment with determined wonder. Your strong spirit of independence blossomed as you adapted to being the oldest twin, stuck in the middle between an older sister and a younger sister. You amazed me then as you amaze me now. You are unique and unfazed by what anyone else thinks you ought to be. You are compassionate and take time to discover the good in people. Never lose that ability. You are confident, daring, smart, determined And vibrant. You have a bright future ahead. Keep dreaming and above all be willing to work hard to see your dreams come true.

As you make your way on your journey through life, you will experience days of joy and days of frustration. Remember there is a lesson and something good in every situation. Don't be afraid to fail. Know this, when things go well and the sun shines warmly on your world, you have a mom and dad who love you. And on those days when you are overwhelmed and confused, you have a mom and dad who love you. Wherever life takes you we will always be here, ready to welcome you home. Your dad and I are both very proud of you Chel. Jump into your future with both feet. The world is full of opportunities, reach for your dreams, choose wisely, and believe in yourself.

Always, Mom
